I believe the Microsoft settlement will only bring more people to use their software and further to keep the competition from gaining ground. By putting Window's based computers in the schools the students will not be exposed to other forms of computers such as Macintosh. The Macintosh platform is much easier to use and less susceptible to the many virus attacks (I believe there are only 42 viruses that can attack a Mac platform and hundreds that can attack the Windows platform). I think a better settlement would be to have Microsoft pay damages rather than give away even more of their products.

Thank you
